

Mrs. Fonnotto's Class

The week of April 30, 2018

We had a very exciting week! Several of our students went to St. Augustine, and they had a terrific time. Students that did not go had a fabulous time creating paper roller coasters! They even had a water play day on Friday! A great time was had by all! We are jumping back into the swing of things this week. Next week we will celebrate Teach Appreciation Week. In keeping with 5th grade tradition, students have selected a subject that they wish to teach to the class. They will need to prepare the lesson, assignment, and homework if needed. It has proven to be a fun week for all of our classmates in the past, and I am confident that they will do a great job this year as well!

On Monday, we will continue working on the rough drafts of our Research Papers. The rough drafts are due on Friday, May 4th. All of this will be done in class. They have worked very hard on this paper, and they have learned some amazing things about Benjamin Franklin.

In Math, we will continue working in our text books.

In Reading, we will read "If You Lived at the Time of the American Revolution". The assessment is scheduled for Thursday, May 3rd.

In Spelling, we will work on Unit 26. Spelling homework will be assigned and due on Thursday. The assessment is Friday, May 4th. We will not have a vocabulary assessment this week.
